Doctoral Programme in Personalized Medicine and Innovative Therapies

“Precision medicine and personalized therapies for ASUGI”

The research project, focused on the development of next-generation precision medicine and personalized therapies, is closely linked to the research and clinical trial activities promoted both by the PhD program in Personalized Medicine and Innovative Therapies at the University of Trieste and by the mission of the Giuliano Isontina University Health Authority (ASUGI). These activities aim to translate scientific advancements into clinical practice, ensuring greater effectiveness in prevention, diagnostics, therapeutic or rehabilitative treatments, as well as in the organization and management of healthcare services.

The research activities will be carried out at ASUGI or at collaborating facilities, within the framework of specific agreements or partnerships.
